Commuting To New York Is No Problem To Bucks Man

By MAURY ALLEN
Courier and Times Staff Writer

The conductor shouts "all aboard." A railroad train begins to chug. The rush is on.

Out of the morning, down the steps, across the platform, briefcase held tight, the extra step and the winded sigh of relief—he made it.

Another commuter has landed safely, tired but there, on a New York-bound express from Trenton's Pennsylvania Railroad station.

A Lower Makefield man, Ross

W. Bennington of 1911 Sylvan Terrace, battles the clock that faces commuters every morning as he rides the rails to his New York job with the United States Rubber company.

Traffic Manager

Mr. Bennington is a traffic manager with U. S. Rubber, the only national rubber concern that doesn't have its home office in Akron, Ohio. He pays $37.10 for a monthly commuter's ticket.

"I commute to New York every day," Mr. Bennington said "but I probably spend less time on the train than most New Yorkers do getting to work.

"I catch the 7 o'clock express out of Trenton every morning and I'm in New York shortly after 8 a.m. Another few minutes on the subway in New York and I'm in my Rockefeller Center office.

"I hardly even notice the time go by. I read a paper and settle down to a smoke and the next thing I know, the conductor is calling 'New York.'"

Mr. Bennington has worked for the rubber company for 18 years. (Continued on Page 3, Col. 7)

Pike Swindle Indictments Asked By DA

Bills Against 23 Persons Being Drawn For Jan. Grand Jury

HARRISBURG — UP—Dauphin County Court today directed District Attorney Huette F. Dowling to submit bills of indictment to the regular grand jury against all 23 persons cited in the investigation of an alleged multi-million dollar Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission swindle.

Dowling said the bills will be drawn up and submitted to the regular January session of the grand jury before the end of the week.

The court, sitting en banc, rejected an oral motion by attorneys for G. Franklin McSorley, Pittsburgh Democrat, and present commission chairman, to quash the special grand jury presentment against McSorley, returned Friday.

McSorley was charged with "willfully and corruptly" permitting a turnpike commission employee to serve as chauffeur for former commission chairman, Thomas J. Evans, Coaldeale Republican, after Evans had left the agency.

Attorney Argues

Attorney Carl L. Shelly, Harrisburg, representing McSorley, argued that any case against his client did not arise out of the original charges leveled by former state Attorney General Herbert B. Cohen. But the court indicated the original requests were for a grand jury to consider all matters of malfeasance and misfeasance on the commission.

The three jurists recommending the presentments were Acting President Judge William H. Neely, and Judges Walter R. Sohn and Homer L. Kreider.

Evans, who preceded McSorley as commission chairman, and James F. Torrance, Export, the lone Republican on the commission and its former secretary, headed the list of 22 persons cited for conspiracy in the alleged swindle. The two also were charged with misconduct in office.

McSorley was not implicated in the alleged swindle.

It's Pay Auto Fines Or Else

Motorists who fail to pay fines for traffic violations can be forced off the road, it was reported at a recent meeting of the Bucks County Magistrate's association. Harry Wambold, West Rockhill Justice of the Peace, reported that if a motorist, who has been cited for a violation, fails to answer the summons the JP can put a "stop" order against him in Harrisburg.

Notify Bureau

He explained that the JP simply notifies the Bureau of Motor Vehicles of the situation and the bureau can either revoke the motorist's license or refuse to renew it until the fine is paid.

Wambold said he doubted that (Continued on Page 3, Col. 2)

Injunction Granted

Three Judges of Bucks County Court today granted a preliminary injunction to Frank Messenger, Levittown, to stop Bristol Township from suspending his plumber's license.

Messenger had been released from prison on a writ of Habeas Corpus after refusing to pay a total of $3500 in fines and costs for alleged plumbing violations in 91 homes in Croydon Acres.

The township sought to suspend Messenger's license because he had not paid the fines or costs. The court issued the injunction to prevent the township from suspending the license until the Writ of Habeas Corpus is disposed of.

Engineers Advise Against Movie Site

George A. Elias, district sanitary engineer for the State Health Department, today advised Bristol borough officials against their plan to lease 20 acres of the Bath well field property for a drive-in theater.

Similar advice was given by William Boardman, borough consulting engineer, when the two officials met with Burgess Anthony R. Niccol and council members on the site.

The two officials said a theater, and the proposed roads leading to it, would threaten to contaminate the borough wells due to seepage into the ground.

Niccol Calls Meeting

The meeting was called this morning by Mr. Niccol, who protested that neighbor Mr. Elias nor Mr. Boardman had been informed of the borough's plan to lease the site to Eric Corp. of American.

At a recessed session tonight, council will consider an ordinance to lease the ground, subject to approval of the sanitary water board.

Council last Monday gave tentative approval of a lease to Eric Corp. of America.

Mr. Niccol last week said he will veto the ordinance. Today he said he will withhold the veto, if the ordinance is adopted, until the February meeting of Council, to prevent Council from immediately overriding his veto.

Three Reasons

Mr. Niccol gave three reasons for his objection. They were: 1. "... this land was advertised to be for sale and all prospective buyers were informed of this fact, but they were not aware ... that the borough was considering it."

Southern Air Warms Bucks

A mass of warm, wet air blown over Lower Bucks today from the south broke the back of the bitter cold wave that had numbed the area for the past 11 days.

Temperatures reached 40 yesterday and the Weather Bureau at Trenton said it was the first day since January 9 that the mercury had climbed past the freezing mark.

A cloudy day today with occasional rain was expected to prelude a foggy and drizzling night. Gradual clearing was on tap for tomorrow with the mercury expected to crash through into the 50's by mid-afternoon.

He And Nixon Take Second Term Oaths

WASHINGTON — UP — President Eisenhower today pledged the second term of his administration to energetic pursuit of world peace.

He promised to seek the creation of an international climate in which "the nations cease to live in trembling before the menace of force."

Prayerfully, the Chief Executive in a relatively short inaugural address (about 2,000 words) said he believed the United States could be a major, contributory force to healing the divisions of the modern world.

"This, nothing less, is the labor to which we are called and our strength dedicated."

The Chief Executive said the principle source of world turmoil today was international Communism, but he expressed the belief that Communist forces had been severely shaken by the revolt in Hungary. He said he thought recent events in Hungary demonstrated to the world "the readiness of men who love freedom to pledge their lives to that love."

Thousands Hear Message

Mr. Eisenhower spoke before massed thousands in front of the Capitol building shortly after he and Vice President Richard M. Nixon publicly took their oaths of office.

Inauguration day dawned chilly and damp. But a drizzly rain that fell during the night ended with sunrise, and patches of blue appeared in the overcast. By noon the morning chill had been replaced by mild temperatures. The sun sent an occasional shaft over the scene of the ceremony at the east steps of the Capitol.

The oath-taking was a repetition of the private ceremony held Sunday in the White House before 80 relatives and close friends of the 66-year-old President and the 44-year-old vice-president.

The President's address climaxed the solemn and ceremonial aspects of the inauguration, 43rd in the nation's history. After it came a 2½ hour parade, led by Mr. Eisenhower from the Capitol to the White House. The national jubilee which marks the quadrennial occasion started Saturday afternoon and will be concluded with festive balls starting tonight and continuing into the small hours of Tuesday.

Heal Divided World

"We voice our hope and our belief that we can help to heal this divided world," the President said. "Thus may the nations cease to live in trembling before the menace of force. Thus may the weight of fear and the weight of arms be taken from the burdened shoulders of mankind."

The President made a particular point of extending an expression of potential American friendship to the people of Russia. He did not, however, include the leaders of the Soviet Union in this friendly phase of his message.

The President said that the (Continued on Page 3, Col. 7)

Commonwealth Contingent Spent $25,000 For Seats

WASHINGTON — UP — Pennsylvanians joined in the traditional pageantry of a presidential inauguration today for the No. 1 citizen of nation, the state, and the historic battlefield town of Gettysburg.

The Keystone State contingent, numbering more than 3,000, was spread throughout the vast throng assembled in front of the Capitol to watch President Eisenhower take his public oath of office for a second term.

The Pennsylvanians ranged from those high in government and politics, with choice seats in the inaugural stand, to Republican Party workers and average citizens who forced themselves out of bed in the early hours this morning to board special trains at various points for Washington.

On the inaugural platform were such Pennsylvania dignitaries as GOP Sen. Edward Martin, the state's senior senator; newly-elected Democratic Sen. Joseph S. Clark Jr., Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom; national committeeman and committeewoman Jay Cooke, Philadelphia, and Mrs. Gaynelle Dixon, Butler, Mrs. Katherine Martindale, president of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women and the 30 members of the Pennsylvania congressional delegation.

Also close to the President were two Pennsylvania members of his administration — Undersecretary of the Navy Thomas S. Gates, (Continued on Page 3, Col. 6)

Good Evening!

Great day in Washington.

Great day for the nation, as President Eisenhower begins a second term.

Vast changes in the world since George Washington gave an oath 168 years ago to faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution—the identical oath Mr. Eisenhower gave in private ceremony yesterday, gave again in public today.

But the idea and ideals of the republic, like the oath itself, survive unchanged and therein lies the strength of a nation now almost alone leading the world and trying to hold it against chaos.

And you know, problems now no less critical than they were four years ago when Ike moved into the White House.

Then Korea and the Far East were powder-kegs. Now, just as critical, the Suez and the Middle East.

Big job for the next four years is to keep our eyes on the ball.

Meantime, moderate weather welcome relief from that prolonged deep-freeze.

You notice the days are getting longer all the time? It won't be long until we'll be anticipating Daylight Saving Time again.

We'd like to anticipate a few more distinguished TV programs like Omnibus' "Lee At Gettysburg" last night.

It more than made up for the usual menu of weekend trivia and junk.

Nice thing about being poor is that you worry only in small figures.

Kids are little people who are sent to bed when they're not sleepy and get up when they are.

Watch your driving.

Attend Installation Of Officers Conducted By Levittown Company 2

Sun Dial Causes Search For Body

Shakespeare wrote it but the Morrisville police re-enacted it yesterday — "Much Ado About Nothing."

The Morrisville version of the play goes like this:

Act one, scene one: Morrisville police officer Harry Tomlinson is summoned to the home of Mrs. Myrtle Price to investigate a missing sun dial. Mrs. Price said the imported sun dial was taken from in front of her house at 480 Hillside avenue, which faces the Delaware Division of the Pennsylvania Canal.

Scene 2

Act one, scene two: Officer Tomlinson questions a group of boys ice skating on the canal. The boys deny taking the sun dial. But, they told Tomlinson, they saw another group of boys take the thing out into the middle of the lake to see how it works in the sun.

Act two, scene one: Officer Tomlinson borrows a snow shovel and starts searching for the elusive dial in a pile of snow along the edges of the canal.

Act two, scene two: A passer-by, watching Tomlinson dig, decided a body had drowned and called Morrisville police for assistance for Tomlinson.

Search Starts

Act two, scene three: Morrisville police, Falls police, and the Bucks County Rescue Squad, called to the scene, begin to search for the non-existent body.

Act three, scene one: The search goes on for more than an hour. The police work their way down the canal a mile and a half. No body, but a group of waddling ducks were found in the lone break in the canal.

Act three, scene two: Police realize it might all have been a "wild goose chase" and return to the warmth of the office.

The curtain closes as officer Tomlinson picks up the shovel and starts hunting for the sun dial again.

Police Chief John S. Davis says for all he knows, Tomlinson, who is off today, might still be searching for the sun dial this morning.

Seeing Levittown

By JIM ORT

Dan and Louise Miller, 41 Silverbell road, Snowball Gate, proved Saturday night that an old-fashioned fox trot dance still rates as one of the best. The couple won a dance contest at the Parkcrest Inn near Camden. Dan said this morning, "We had a lot of younger couples competing against us doing the mambo, cha-cha-cha, jitterbug, and all the newest style dancing. We did the fox trot and won a huge, gold trophy."

Last week, we noticed that two high school girls didn't realize that Violetwood was in Levittown. Received a letter from Mrs. Clarence O. Brown, 88 Verdant road, substantiating the fact. She writes, "True, we are one of the smallest sections in Levittown, but we have been in existence three years now. We have an active civic and social women's club, and I believe one of the few sections that has a Men's club. We also have a soft ball team! Just to keep the records straight, Violetwood is in Levittown." OK, we believe you.

Richard D. Creed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael B. Creed, 2 Spicabush road, Snowball Gate, has been promoted to the rank of First Sergeant in the Cadet Regiment of the Boston College ROTC. Student Creed is majoring in marketing at the College of Business Administration. Upon graduation in June 1958, he will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army reserve.

Driver Held In $30 Bail

A driver was charged with reckless driving after his vehicle collided with another on the ramp leading to Route 13 in Tullytown at 4:15 p.m. yesterday.

The charge was lodged against Blenlie Carpenter, 34, of 28 Walnut avenue, Trenton, by Pat Coia of the Tullytown police.

Carpenter told the policeman his brakes failed as he was preparing to stop and he crashed into the rear of a car operated by Harvey A. White, 25, Midway Trailer Village, RD 1, Morrisville. White was stopped at the time waiting to cross the freeway.

Carpenter was given a hearing before JP Byron W. Purdy and released under $30 bail for a further hearing.

Damage to the White car amounted to $350 and damage to the Carpenter auto was estimated at $450.

Tullytown Police are also investigating a hit and run accident which occurred in front of 61 Stream lane, Stonybrook, Levittown.

Michael Calisti, 428 Commonwealth street, Trenton, told police he was parked in front of the home since 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and when he left at 8:50 p.m. last night the left door of his car had been damaged.

Dr. Botel to Address Kindergarten Unit

Can your child count 13 objects? Will he be six years old when he enters first grade? Does he recognize words that rhyme?

Answers to these three simple questions can show parents the readiness of their child for reading and for school in general.

Dr. Morton Botel, acting superintendent of Bucks County schools, will ask Levittown parents these questions — and others along the same line — Wednesday night at 9 o'clock at a meeting of the Levittown Nursery and Kindergarten Association at Temple Shalom.

Reading Expert

Dr. Botel, a reading expert, will discuss the significance of the questions and will answer individual questions from parents. All Levittown area parents are invited to hear him discuss "Reading Readiness in Pre-School Children."

In his sixth year as reading consultant for Bucks County schools, Dr. Botel also has taught at University of Pennsylvania and Pennsylvania State University. He has taught students from the seventh grade through college level.

Ounce of Prevention

"The reading expert's intense concern is with the prevention of reading difficulties rather than their correction," says Dr. Botel. "In my office as acting superintendent of Bucks County Schools, I am working toward the creation of a program to prevent such difficulties."

Dr. Botel is the author of three books dealing with improving study habits, teaching of spelling and teaching of phonetics.

3 Levittown Sections Set For Lights

Residents of Snowball Gate, Red Rose Gate and Quincy Hollow should have street lights by March 1 as the result of the actions of the Middletown Board of Supervisors Saturday.

The board accepted title to about 10 miles of streets in the three sections. At the same time the supervisors passed a resolution creating street lighting districts in the area and authorizing a contract with the Philadelphia Electric Company to turn on the lights.

Angus T. Johnson, township manager, said the necessary "paper work" might take as long as March 1. But it is possible the details would be cleared up and the lights turned on before then.

The supervisors accepted the streets after Levitt and Sons, Inc., posted maintenance bonds totaling $76,000. Under terms of the agreement the Levitt firm agrees to maintain the streets until the Spring of 1958.

Johnson explained that some parts of Snowball Gate had been accepted previously and the lights have been lighted for some time. Saturday's action includes the rest of the streets in the section, all of Quincy Hollow and the developed parts of Red Rose Gate.

Goldfarb Asks For Parole

Dr. William Goldfarb, of Bristol, former Bucks County Deputy coroner, now serving a three-to-23-month prison term, has applied for parole.

A hearing on his request has been set for Feb. 1 in Montgomery County Court, Norristown. Goldfarb was arrested along with the then coroner, Russell J. T. Ferris, in September, 1955. They were accused of charging the county for autopsies never performed.

Goldfarb was tried in Montgomery County Court on one count of the charges. On Dec. 7, after pleading no defense, he was committed to Bucks County Prison. He was also ordered to pay a $150 fine and the cost of prosecution.

In his petition for parole Dr. Goldfarb states that his practice as a chiropractor is "rapidly dissipating away," that he has been subjected to the "intense glare of publicity" and that he is genuinely sorry "for betraying the trust and confidence of Bucks County citizens."

Bridge Trial Is Postponed

Arguments on charges against three former members of the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission were postponed in Bucks County Court today until a later date.

Judge I. Louis Rubin had set a tentative hearing date for today on a motion to quash information against the men and to discharge them, which were filed by their attorneys on Friday.

The former commissioners—R. Chapman Carver, Ivyland; Leslie Brown, Trenton, and Alexander R. Miller, Easton—were indicted previously by two Bucks County grand juries on 14 bills of indictment charging them with conspiracy and misdemeanor in office.

The three are accused of accepting illegal salaries and billing the Bridge commission for parties and trips.

The state Legislature, in recess until Tuesday, was represented by a "select committee" of Senate and House GOP leaders.

The 7 GOP congressmen held open house in their respective offices throughout the day for their constituents.

Two lawmakers proudly watched their most distinguished constituent — President Eisenhower — take his oath of office. Congressman S. Walter Stauffer, York Republican who won back his seat last November, and state Rep. Francis Worley were on hand for the round of ceremonies.

Stauffer represents the 19th Congressional district of York, Adams, and Cumberland counties. Worley sits in the General Assembly for Adams County where Mr. Eisenhower's farm home is located.

The Pennsylvania inaugural visitors arrived by plane, 10 special trains and motorcycles from all parts of the Commonwealth. For most it was a one-day expedition; for a select few it was the climax of a week end of pre-inaugural festivities.

Pennsylvanians purchased more than $25,000 worth of seats for the inaugural parade—2,700 of the 50,000 seats available.

State Float

Pennsylvania did its best to make its No. 1 citizen feel at home even though away from his beloved Gettysburg farm.

The Pennsylvania float, carrying a stylized map of the state and adorned with 25,000 mountain laurel, featured as its centerpiece in the shape of a key-stone a scale model of the President's farm, including all the buildings, the new driveway and the putting green.

The Gettysburg High School Band was assigned the role of leading the Citizens for Eisenhower section; the band front of Gettysburg College the honor of carrying the "Pennsylvania" banner in front of the state's parade units.

In an outdoor service, the Rev. Leo Tynkiw, pastor of St. Mary's Ukrainian Catholic Church, Bath road, blesses the water. Similar to that used in the Ukraine, the ceremony celebrates the baptism of Christ in the River Jordan.

Ike Pledges Pursuit Of World Peace

people of this country "honor, no less in this divided world than in a less tormented time, the people of Russia." The President wished the Russians success in educational and industrial development, greater intellectual freedom and security, and "fuller enjoyment of the rewards of their own toil."

"For as such things may come to pass," he added, "the more certain will be the coming of that day when our peoples may freely meet in friendship."

The President gave his second inaugural address a specific title — "The Price Of Peace."

He explained his reasons for accepting this point:

"Splendid as can be the blessings of such a peace, high will be its cost in toll patiently sustained, in help honorably given, in sacrifice calmly borne."

"We are called to meet the price of this peace," he said.

Cost Will Be High

"To counter the threat of those who seek to rule by force," he continued, "we must pay the costs of our own needed military strength, and to help to build the security of others. We must use our skills and knowledge and, at times, our substance to help others rise from misery, however far the scene of suffering may be from our shores."

The President dealt at length with his belief that the nations of the world have become increasingly inter-dependent, with mutual responsibility extending far beyond the borders of a single country.

He said that the economic needs of all countries made isolation "an impossibility."

"Not even America's prosperity could long survive if other nations did not also prosper," he said. "No nation can longer be a fortress, lone and strong and safe. And any people, seeking such shelter for themselves, can now build only their prison."

Asks U. N. Buildup

The President pointed out that the United States must recognize her "deep involvement in the destiny of men everywhere" and accordingly, should attempt to strengthen the authority of the United Nations.

"In that body rests the best hope of our age for the assertion of that law by which all nations may live in dignity," he said.

The President ignored domestic problems except as they are related to the international scene. He concentrated instead on peace.

The stately inaugural ceremony was followed by a 2½-hour parade down Pennsylvania Avenue, featuring 65 bands, 34 lavish floats and a muscular display of the new military weapons backing up Mr. Eisenhower's plea for world peace.

Washington wore a Mardi Gras air for democracy's biggest show. Old Glory and flags of the 48 states decorated the streets. Vendors hawked like buttons and souvenir programs. Refreshment stands sprouted like canvas mushrooms in the city's manicured parks.

Officials forecast a crowd of 750,000 would watch the parade in person, millions more on television. The weatherman promised mild temperatures in the 40's but hedged on whether it would rain during the afternoon.

Morrisville Chief Praises Public Help In 1956 Fires

Union Firemen Had 30 Less Alarms Due To 'Awareness'

The Union Fire company of Morrisville answered 80 fire calls this year, a drop of 30 from last year, and Chief Frank Cowell attributed "public awareness and less grass fields" as the main reasons for the drop.

Chief Cowell said, "People are a lot more conscious now of fire prevention. They are being more careful and that is paying off in less fires."

Conversion
"There is also less chance of fires starting in grass fields in the borough simply because many of these grass fields are being converted into land for business and residential use," the chief said.

In the annual report, grass fires led the calls with 30. The fire company answered 19 house calls for help. Other calls included ed work trailers, two; telephone equipment, one; box car, one; electric wires, two; assistance to Trenton, three; automobiles, two; stores, three; dumps, six; trucks, one; barn fire, one; woodpile, one; rubbish, one; and drownings, two.

One False Alarm

The company also responded to one false alarm. The company's ambulance answered 343 calls and covered 4962 miles.

The ambulance responded to 79 accidents and made 232 calls to and from hospitals. There were 30 miscellaneous calls and the ambulance traveled twice with the fire truck.

Best Attendance

Attendance leader of the company is Jules Sabo, who had a perfect record and answered all 80 of the fire company calls. Chief Frank Cowell was second with 77 answers and James Burns and A. Cuicci each answered 75 calls.

Other leaders included Earl Wilcox, 73; W. Nolan, 72; John Ashmore, 71; George Sauyack, 70; F. Nolan, 69; and A. Eisenbrey, 67.

Yardley School Program Teaches French; Slide Rule

As part of an experimental or "pilot program" at the Yardley Elementary school, a group of fourth and fifth grade children have the opportunity of studying a second language. In an aural oral presentation these children have been studying French.

Aims of Program

With Mrs. Violet Hassell, school librarian, as instructor, they are learning everyday greetings and courteous expressions, songs and games of the children in French speaking countries.

The aims of the program are to enable the children to understand simple French sentences relating to their own activities and to express themselves concerning their activities to give the children as good a pronunciation and intonation as possible; to stimulate interest in another culture; to aid in developing in the children a desire to continue learning the language and to find if there is a need for foreign language in the elementary school.

Slide Rule

Early in the school year the same group of children learned to locate numbers on the slide rule and to do simple problems in division and multiplication using the slide rule. They did research on individual projects including such subjects as dinosaurs, astronomy, library work and aviation.

This type of program is one of many endeavors on the part of the Pennsburg schools to explore new ideas, so that the educational program may better meet the needs of all children, a school spokesman said.

Yippee Ki O! Gun Talk Set At Yardley

The Yardley-Makefield Optimist club will hear a talk on the growth of the gun industry from the wild west days to the present weapons used by law enforcement agencies Wednesday night.

George Schielke, who is occupied in a rare trade these days—he's a gunsmith—will speak to the club at its regular meeting at Washington Crossing inn.

Gun Samples

Mr. Schielke, who operates his shop in Washington Crossing, N. J., will also illustrate his talk with samples of guns taken from his collection.

Hobby To Profession

The New Jersey man became interested in guns as a very young boy and his hobby has developed into a profession for him.

Mr. Schielke will bring along an assistant, who is a college trained gunsmith.

Andrew Cochran, president of the club, said a full turnout of about 35 members is expected to hear Mr. Schielke's interesting talk on the history of guns.

Monaco Waits Blessed Event

MONACO — UP — Everyone in this principality concentrated on the two ancient cannons situated high on the palace hill, waiting for their boom to announce the arrival of Princess Grace's baby — if they don't blow up.

Prince Rainier said Sunday word of the birth would be announced until the royal cannons start popping. It was explained that in the event of a lengthy delivery, the Prince did not want their friends around the world to be kept in suspense.

The word of the birth will be relayed at the first shot. But it will be necessary to wait until after the 21st round is fired to find out whether the baby is a boy or girl.

A girl will rate only 21 rounds. A boy will get 401 salutes.

Two veteran British royal artillerymen have been trying to place bets that the two old French 47 cannons won't be able to stand repeated firing. Some of the Monagasque artillerymen were said to feel the same way.

Morrisville Streets Need Re-Paving

More than 80 per cent of the streets in the borough of Morrisville will be resurfaced this year if the street committee budget is approved, James Magee, street committee chairman said today.

The street committee has approved a budget of $78,000 which will be presented to the council for approval at the February session.

"Most of the borough streets haven't been resurfaced in four to six years," Mr. Magee said. "We will resurface practically every street in the borough."

"The only ones we don't intend to do are the streets in Highland park and in Grandview Estates. Those streets have been done recently."

Sewer Guarantee

"None of the work will be done until the contract for the sewer guarantee runs out," Mr. Magee said.

The street committee chairman explained that the borough has a contract with the installers of the sewer for care and maintenance of the streets.

"We don't intend to begin any of the work until June. That's when the guarantee runs out and the care of the streets will fall back to the borough."

Mr. Magee said the street committee will start with an advance of $15,000 left over from last year's budget.

"This money was appropriated for resurfacing but wasn't used because of the sewer guarantee."

"Our budget calls for $78,000 but it will actually be $15,000."

Junior Class Maps Plans

The newly-elected slate of officers of the junior class of Morrisville High school will begin work immediately on the junior prom and the trip to Washington, D.C. in the spring, James E. Wood, assistant principal, said today.

The Washington trip will be financed by the sale of magazines, Easter seals, cards and the profits from dances held throughout the year.

The elected officers of the class of '58 are William Roberts, president; Edward Hunsberger, vice president; Val Miller, treasurer; Judy Preston, secretary, and Warren Long, business manager.

less because of that reserve money," he said.

Street Sweeper

The committee also discussed the possibility of renting a street sweeper for the borough.

"With the resurfacing job coming up, the sweeper could pay for itself in labor saving expenses."

The council has been studying the possibility of purchasing a street sweeper for some time but has held up decision pending the new budget acceptance.

Other members of the street committee include Thomas Purcell, Charles Elcock, and John Sawyer as well as Mr. Magee.

Two Drivers Get Tangled By Fire Call

Two drivers — who did nothing more than attempt to obey the law when they heard fire engine sirens — got tangled up in an accident yesterday in Morrisville.

A Bristol man, Michael Choma, 557 Porter avenue, was driving east on West Bridge street in Morrisville about 9:30 yesterday morning when he heard the sound of sirens.

Like a dutiful citizen, he pulled over to the side to allow the fire engines to pass.

Unable To Pull Over

George Zauzack, 37 Keystone avenue, Morrisville, following the Choma car told Morrisville police officer Harry Tomlinson he tried to pull over when Choma did but was unable to.

Zauzack said the other car veered suddenly to the curb in front of him and when he hit his brakes he went sliding into the first car.

Police estimated damage to Choma's car as $85. Damage to Zauzack's car was estimated at $65. No one was injured.

The fire, in a five and dime store, proved minor.

Prime Minister Sidney G. Holland of New Zealand says that he is an eloquent speaker because he once sold plows to farmers. The farmers' only answer to his eloquent sales talks would be a simple "yes" or "no."
